ABOUT THE PARTNERSHIP

What is the Global Partnership for Effective Development Co-operation?

Realising the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development requires the mobilisation and effective use of all types of development resources. The Global Partnership for Effective Development Co-operation provides a unique platform to advance the effectiveness of development efforts by all actors, to deliver results that are long-lasting and contribute to the achievement of the SDGs. It supports and ensures accountability for the implementation of shared principles and differentiated commitments at the political level. It contributes to the strengthening of the global partnership for sustainable development.

Through its multi-stakeholder platform, the Global Partnership provides practical support and guidance and shares knowledge to boost development impact with a strong country focus to implement internationally agreed effectiveness principles at country level – country ownership, a focus on results, inclusive partnerships and transparency and mutual accountability.

The Global Partnership tracks progress in the implementation of Busan commitments for more effective development co-operation through its monitoring framework comprised of a set of 10 indicators. These indicators focus on strengthening developing country institutions, increasing transparency and predictability of development co-operation, enhancing gender equality, as well as supporting greater involvement of civil society, parliaments and private sector in development efforts. The monitoring framework is currently being refined to fully reflect the 2030 Agenda and will contribute to the review of targets for SDG 5 and 17 and implementation of the Financing for Development agreements.

The Global Partnership was created at the Fourth High-Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness in Busan in 2011 and came into effect in 2012. It brings together governments, bilateral and multilateral organisations, civil society and representatives from parliaments and the private sector all committed to strengthening the effectiveness of their development co-operation.

The Global Partnership is led by three Ministerial-level Co-Chairs, and supported by a 20-member Steering Committee.

Short Overview of the Global Partnership

The Global Partnership for Effective Development Co-operation (Global Partnership) brings together a wide array of stakeholders to advance and support effective development co-operation across the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. Its membership includes: governments; multilateral, international and regional organisations; civil society, trade unions, the private sector and foundations; local and regional governments; and parliamentarians.

The Global Partnership provides a dedicated space for all stakeholders to advance the effectiveness, quality and impact of their respective development co-operation efforts by supporting:

- Ownership of development priorities by developing countries: Countries should lead in defining the development priorities that they want to implement.
- A focus on results: Sustainable impact should drive all investments and efforts in development policy making.
- Inclusive partnerships: All relevant actors must have the space to engage in development, recognizing their diversity and the complementarity of their actions.
- Transparency and shared responsibility: Development co-operation must be transparent and accountable to all citizens.

Supporting the Implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals

Today, dynamic global partnerships are emerging to mobilise knowledge, expertise, technology, policies and financial resources that countries can apply to accelerate progress on the 2030 Agenda in each country and context for the eradication of global poverty.

Sustainable Development Goal 17 calls for governments and stakeholders to revitalize the global partnership for sustainable development, including through development co-operation and development finance.

The Global Partnership provides a dedicated space for all stakeholders to advance the effectiveness of their respective development co-operation efforts in support of the SDGs and the Addis Ababa Action Agenda by supporting:

- developing country leadership, strengthening of institutions and country systems
- smarter and more transparent development co-operation to deliver results that are predictable and aligned to developing countries' systems and priorities
- development partnerships involving a broad range of stakeholders to maximise impact
- monitoring of progress in implementation through a process led by developing countries.

SECOND HIGH-LEVEL MEETING IN NAIROBI

The Second High-Level Meeting (HLM2) amplified the positive impact of development co-operation over the next 15 years. Hosted by the Government of Kenya, the meeting took place in Nairobi on 28 November–1 December 2016. HLM2:

- took stock of the implementation of development effectiveness principles and commitments
- provided a learning space on development effectiveness, showcasing successful examples
- identified innovative approaches to sustainable development that can be scaled up
- positioned the Global Partnership to effectively contribute to implementation of the SDGs and the Addis Ababa Action Agenda.

Based on inclusive consultation, the HLM2 Nairobi Outcome Document helped shape how existing and new development actors can partner to implement Agenda 2030 and realise the SDGs.

Preparatory days

HLM2 was preceded by two preparatory days (28–29 November, 2016), providing the opportunity for a range of stakeholders to meet in advance of the high-level leaders segment. Forums were planned for civil society, youth, women, parliamentarians, foundations and the private sector. A Monitoring Workshop provided space for discussion around the data-rich results of the Global Partnership's second monitoring round, which provided timely input into the discussions.

High-level leaders segment

The two-day high-level meeting (30 November–1 December 2016) offered a unique platform for heads of state, ministers, heads of major international organisations and leaders from civil society, the private sector, foundations, local government and parliaments to showcase successes and identify innovative approaches.

The meeting included seven plenary sessions, parallel discussions on bottlenecks, a series of side events and marketplace stalls for showcasing successful innovation, implementation and sharing knowledge.

Special focus on empowering women and youth

Accelerated efforts are needed by all partners to unleash the power of women and youth as dynamic contributors to society. The Government of Kenya led special focus discussions on economic empowerment of women and youth – inclusivity and mainstreaming for effective and accelerated development at the HLM2.

HLM2 plenary sessions focused on:

- progress with implementing development effectiveness principles and commitments
- achieving and financing the SDGs
- learning from south-south and triangular co-operation
- economic empowerment of women and youth
- leaving no-one behind
- innovative and inclusive multi-stakeholder partnerships
- private sector contributions to sustainable development.

Organisation of HLM2

HLM2 was organised by the Government of Kenya with support from the Global Partnership’s three co-chairs at that time (Malawi, Mexico and the Netherlands), Steering Committee members and the Joint Support Team provided by the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development and the United Nations Development Programme. The Government of Kenya and the Global Partnership’s Co-Chairs call on the international community to participate and provide the financial, technical and necessary support

FIRST HIGH-LEVEL MEETING IN MEXICO

More than 1,500 participants from over 130 countries including developing countries like the Central African Republic; emerging providers like Brazil and Turkey; traditional donors; parliamentarians; and representatives of business associations and leading private sector companies like Unilever and H&M came together to discuss progress in development co-operation and anchor the Global Partnership in a post-2015 development framework.

Opening the conference, Mexican President Peña Nieto noted:

“We have the opportunity to join forces and move together toward a new era of effective co-operation to enable us to achieve inclusive and sustainable development for the world we want. We’re able to build the new architecture of international aid necessary to realise the post-2015 development agenda.”

Concrete commitments launched at the forum include:

- Increasing aid aimed at strengthening tax administration in developing countries to ensure they keep more of their own money. The initiative, led by Australia and OECD also aims to measure how much aid goes into boosting developing countries' tax administrations;
- The Arab donor co-ordination group pledged to step up co-operation with developing countries in ways that are fully in line with the Busan Principles and,
- Philanthropic foundations launched a set of guidelines on how the philanthropic sector can engage with governments and other stakeholders in the reality of post-2015 development.

The initiatives were launched in a voluntary annex to a far-reaching communiqué adopted by all delegates; "Building Towards an Inclusive Post-2015 Development Agenda" aims to push forward effective development co-operation and ensure its inclusion in the post-2015 global development agenda.

The two-day forum included five thematic plenary sessions on areas of co-operation that boost results in developing countries, including effective development co-operation in middle-income countries, tax and development, South-South and 'triangular' co-operation and knowledge sharing, partnering with business in development and progress in meeting commitments on effective development co-operation that underpin the Global Partnership.

"Africa loses around $50 billion a year through tax evasion, undeclared business and corruption," said Nigerian Finance Minister and former Global Partnership Co-Chair Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, whilst opening the session on tax and illicit flows.

"The Global Partnership, bringing so many important actors in development together, can and should help developing countries analyse gaps in their tax systems and ultimately improve them," she added.

Wrapping up the session on South-South, triangular co-operation and knowledge sharing, former Global Partnership Co-Chair and Indonesian Minister for National Development planning Armida Alisjahbana said:

"In an ever-changing and dynamic global situation we have come to realise that development cooperation needs a new approach to address increasingly complex development challenges, including approaches beyond financing."

In the session on partnering with business in development, former Global Partnership Co-Chair and United Kingdom Secretary of State for International Development Justine Greening said:

"We must agree a new partnership between emerging nations, aid donors and private investors to make sure every penny spent on development has the greatest possible impact. The Global Partnership provides the right platform to bring these partners together and ensure we are ready to deliver the UN's new development goals from 2015."

GLOBAL PARTNERSHIP INITIATIVES

The Global Partnership Initiatives (GPIs) are voluntary initiatives led by different types of development actors (e.g. national governments, international organisations, civil society organisations, trade unions, parliamentarians, local and regional governments, foundations, private sector) that are committed to advance specific commitments for effective development co-operation agreed through the Busan Partnership Agreement, as well as make progress in new and innovative areas of the Global Partnership.

GPIs regroup initiatives that were formerly known as Busan Building Blocks (launched at the Fourth High-Level Forum on Aid Effectiveness, Busan, 2011) and Voluntary Initiatives (launched at the first High-Level Meeting of the Global Partnership, Mexico City, 2014).

For more information on the origins of the Building Blocks and Voluntary Initiatives, please consult the Busan Building Blocks Concept Notes and the list of Voluntary Initiatives in Annex 1 of the Mexico High-Level Meeting Communiqué.
